Autism spectrum disorder (ASD) in adults: epidemiology, diagnostic criteria, and comorbid conditions. Autism spectrum disorder (ASD) is a lifelong neurodevelopmental condition that is characterized by social deficits, repetitive behaviours, and difficulties with communication. Although research suggests that the incidence of ASD is increasing in the paediatric population, its prevalence remains stable in adults. In this review, we explore the characteristics and symptoms of ASD in adults, compare its prevalence in different countries and in different diagnostic criteria, and discuss the associated comorbidities, such as depressive and anxiety disorders. The diagnosis of ASD in adulthood requires a careful analysis of the clinical presentation, careful application of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders criteria, 82157476af
